What is NAPSA?

The National Association of Prospective Student Advisers (NAPSA) was formed in 1989 and is comprised of University, TAFE and private college prospective student advisers who provide information on courses, accommodation, costs and services available at their respective organisations, to potential students. Throughout Australasia, NAPSA members work in collaboration with school career advisers and guidance officers to promote further education as an option for secondary students and members of the community. The association also provides a vital network for members and helps to develop an ethos and set of skills for all those working within this industry.

Who should belong to NAPSA?

Membership is open to individuals or institutions in the field of post-secondary education and training (higher education, vocational and technical education).

The aim of NAPSA is to provide support to members in delivering high quality information and promoting the diversity of education and training throughout Australasia. People currently working in central or faculty recruitment, promotions or direct marketing roles are encouraged to become a NAPSA member.

Benefits of membership

NAPSA members enjoy a wide range of benefits including:

- Access to regional and metropolitan career expo information and schedules
- Invitations to the biennial conference
- Opportunities for networking and professional development
- Links to other member institutions throughout Australia and New Zealand
- Access to resources, publications and presentations to assist with achieving best practice in student recruitment and event management

Management of NAPSA

NAPSA is governed by a management committee appointed for a two year term at the General Meeting of the Association, and works to a constitution developed by its members.
